

The University of Michigan – Dearborn
Department of Computer and Information Science
Assistant/Associate Professors

The Department of Computer and Information Science (CIS) at the University of Michigan-Dearborn invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in any of the following areas: computer gaming, computer and data security, digital forensics, information assurance, and multimedia. Rank and salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. We offer competitive salaries and start-up packages.

Qualified candidates must have, or expect to have, a Ph.D. in CS or a closely related discipline by the time of appointment and will be expected to do scholarly and sponsored research, as well as teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. The CIS Department offers several BS and MS degrees. The department will also contribute to a new interdisciplinary doctoral-level program in information systems engineering awaiting imminent approval. The current research areas in the department include computer graphics and geometric modeling, database systems, multimedia systems and gaming, networking, real-time and secure computing, and software engineering. These areas of research are supported by several labs, including the Database and Multimedia Systems Laboratory, the Games and Multimedia Environments Laboratory, the Vehicular Networking Systems Research Laboratory, and the Virtual Engineering Laboratory.

The University of Michigan-Dearborn is located in the southeastern Michigan area and offers excellent opportunities for faculty collaboration with many industries. We are one of three campuses forming the University of Michigan system and are a comprehensive university with over 8500 students. One of university's strategic visions is to advance the future of manufacturing in a global environment.

The University of Michigan-Dearborn is dedicated to the goal of building a culturally-diverse and pluralistic faculty committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment, and strongly encourages applications from minorities and women.
